We were the first to suggest that some new way of celebrating the Founding of the United States be adopted. The Record-Union has adopted it, and the Record-Union and the Stockton Mail and second our motion. Certainly new ways can be devised. Let us do it. We desire to be equal to introducing variety. For instance, it has been suggested that the money be spent in the way of new entertainments for the people and moral entertainments for all, and there are a host of ways of celebrating without traveling forever in the old rut. People are tiring of Grand Marnier, cascades and triumphal carousels, the extortions of bands, the mimicry of "Ho-roses," etc.

The nomination of W. H. B. Backus for Collector of Boston. According to that account Senators Dawes and Hoar have been making an unreasonable and factious opposition to the President, and have been ignominiously defeated. The truth is far otherwise. The nomination of W. H. B. Backus, in the first place, was not fit to be made. It was a scandal upon the Republican party, for the reason that this man's only nobility grew out of his bitter and even rabid attacks upon the principles of Civil Service reform, and his impudent defense of the police system. It is said that Voltaire was once offered a Cardinal's hat, but Voltaire as a Prince of the Church, would hardly have been a more incongruous spectacle than W. H. B. Backus in the service of a party pledged in the most sordid way, and by repeated oaths, to the reform of the police system. The disputation about the confirmation of this person states that Dawes and Hoar had been willing to put their objections upon the record of "Senatorial courtesy," they could have defeated the nomination. It is very creditable to Senators Dawes and Hoar that they did refuse to put their objection upon that ground. They took the one perfectly sound and tenable position, namely that the appointment of such a man as W. H. B. Backus was a disputation of the principles of the Republican party, and a shameless inde-

THE GRAIN GAMBLING PROSPECT.

The other day grain gambling was formally inaugurated at the San Francisco Stock Exchange, and the President of that institution made a speech on the occasions in which occurred the following suggestive remarks: "We all remember how long it took before the business of the Stock Exchange grew until they had sold the Comstock over and over again a dozen or a score of times within a year. And it will be the same with the Grain Exchange. It may not come at once, but the time will come when we shall sell the entire crop of the State many times over." Truly, these are encouraging words, and it is indeed a noble prospect to which the President of the Stock Exchange thinks this points. He holds out the hope that at no distant period the rage for gambling which has made the institution over which he presides a curse to the State, will include the grain crop as well as the mines, and that the sharpers who, producing nothing themselves, but wasting continually, are more mischievous than the Chinese, will luxuriate in a new "market" of a kind as legitimate, as useful, and as respectable, as the game of three-card monte. It is anything but a good indication that the grain gambling scheme has been in length begun. It shows that California is still to be injured by the passion for gambling in every form which the Stock Exchange has so sedulously cultivated, and the unconscious way in which this new evil has been announced proves how completely the demolition of the stock market has pervaded business circles in San Francisco.

The few feeble attempts which have been made to justify the grain gambling enterprise have only served to demonstrate the absence of all legitimate grounds for it. The absurdity of the undertaking from a business point of view was admitted by the speaker we have quoted when he declared that the only possible outcome of the transaction would be to "sell the entire crop many times over." Out of such a business nothing can or is indeed expected to issue but fat picking for brokers and capitalist speculators. These persons count upon making their profits out of the ignorance and inexperience of the general public. They are in no wiser occupation than the proprietors of faro games, in fact. They are non-producers. They add nothing to the wealth of the community. They live by fleecing their neighbors. Their whole energies are devoted to diverting the earnings of the producers from legitimate channels to their own pockets. They are parasites and leeches upon the body politic, and their influence is altogether harmful and bad. The pretense that their betting stimulates commerce is utterly false. They are not wanted in commerce at all, but occupy there a position as illegitimate as that of buccaneers. They have as a class done infinite mischief to the people of the Pacific coast, and they cannot point to a single really valuable result as the work of their hands.

RESTAURANT DE FRANCE.—The French Hotel, located at the corner of Second and L streets, within which, under the proprietorship of "French Louis," so many select banquets and dinners have been given for the most elite parties, was yesterday vacated, the proprietor having rented and fitted up most elegantly in the Lardier building, 427 N Street. The name will be changed to the Metropolitan Theater. Here French Louis will future hold forth beneath the sign of "Restaurant De France," with far better facilities than he had before, and in a more convenient situation at his former place, but in point of location and appointments. In his new quarters he will have a large dining and furnished dining and banqueting hall, a main floor, sufficiently large to seat two hundred guests, a well and cheerfully lighted room, a day room, a large room for his chandeliers and other accessories for the more fashionable banqueting hours of evening. In addition to the main room, another entrance will be made, leading to a private dining-room, laid with elegant boy Brussels' carpet, and with fine furniture, chairs, etc., to accommodate the working and cultural classes. The working and cultural classes have been well ranged and fitted up in the most perfect manner, as well as all the facilities and the fullest appointments, including a well-stocked dining room, and delicacies without limit and unmeasurable. A cool storage room for wines, spirits, etc., is provided in the basement, and all in a most favorably selected location, but in a favorably selected establishment of this kind to be found upon the coast.

A CASE IN POINT.—The city of Eureka, Humboldt county, is free from debt. They are now in the throes of a mighty effort to weather the financial storm, having $100,000 local improvements. Taxation is three-sevenths of one per cent., or 70 cents on the $100. Notwithstanding this low rate of taxation, the city growth of Eureka has depended upon the energy and enterprise of the surrounding country. It is now practically at a standstill. Those who suppose that cities cut off and taxed at a low rate of taxation necessarily prosper, are in error. The heavy debts and high rates of taxation necessarily decline, would do well to hunt up the history of the city to sustain such theories. It is probable that they will find the contrary to be the truth.

WANTS TO RETURN.—Wong Chip was shipped up and chipped into the city lock-up a fortnight ago on a charge of assault to minister at Winnemucca. A resolution from Governor Kinkaid, of Nevada, secured his release to that State, and took the life out of a wife, a widow, and mother of two. A. RECORD-UNION representative drove along to his behalf. Wong Chip had good luck, and writes to City Attorney Anderson, in a letter, that he is to be released to-day, that was not the man whom the authorities wanted, and that he has been set at liberty and told to come back to Sacramento. But, like most men, he is not to be trifled with. He flat broke, and writes to the City Attorney to devise ways and means to secure his return to this section.

SUPERVISORS.—The Board of Supervisors met yesterday and decided the necessary repairs to be made to the Union Pacific tracks, bridge, and other structures of Supervisor Christy. The Board ordered $600 to be expended in grading and putting, in good order the road to Willow spruce, that provided residents along the road with a like amount of time and expense to the rest. A RECORD-UNION representative drove along to his behalf.
